Ministerial Council for Police and Emergency Management - Emergency Management

11 February 2011 - Canberra

RESOLUTIONS

MCPEM-EM agreed:

1. that it is fully committed to leading governments toward a national, integrated approach to building disaster resilience and the delivery of sustained behavioural change and enduring partnerships across Australia

In delivering on this commitment, MCPEM-EM agreed to task the National Emergency Management Committee (NEMC) to:

2. review and report (by the end of 2011) on the effectiveness of arrangements between all Australian jurisdictions for communication, situational awareness, liaison and response to natural disasters
3. examine and report (by mid 2011) on the effectiveness of Commonwealth and state/territory relief and recovery payments
4. convene a forum (and report on its outcomes by mid 2011) to consider new and emerging technologies that could be harnessed to assist with preparedness, response and recovery to natural disasters with an initial focus on floods
5. continue to work with Treasuries on issues relating to arrangements for the insurance of the assets of:
 - a. Australian individuals and businesses for damage and loss associated with flood and other natural disasters, and
 - b. Australian governments for damage and loss associated with flood and other natural disasters, with a view to removing disincentives to take-up of private insurance and encouraging equity and best practice in maximising community and government self-reliance

6. work, in consultation with Geoscience Australia, to scope a potential work program (by mid 2011) to map areas of risk relating to riverine flooding, flash floods, storm surge and coastal inundation. That work should take into account existing knowledge and initiatives, currency of information and identified information gaps, and the need for consistent and robust methodologies
7. develop an Action Plan (by mid 2011) to work in partnership with the Australian Building Codes Board, Standards Australia, planning officials at all levels of government and across other relevant public and private organisations to influence and effect land-use planning and building, noting that the development of partnerships across governments and the planning and building sectors is crucial to building resilience
8. identify an evidence base to highlight the efficacy of essential public infrastructure improvement and mitigation with a view to program changes that encourage betterment of infrastructure that is regularly damaged by natural disasters

9. review existing programs and prepare a draft strategy for MCPPEM-EM's consideration (by mid 2011) for the efficient and effective coordination of volunteer effort in the immediate clean up stage post-disaster
10. MCPPEM-EM:
 - a. noted the value of Emergency Alert / StateAlert and the work that is being undertaken on the location-based warning capability but emphasised that these technologies can only supplement emergency warning information that is delivered primarily through radio and television, and also through a number of other mechanisms, and
 - b. recommended that as part of work on communicating with and educating people about risks under the COAG National Strategy for Disaster Resilience, that the NEMC should give particular attention to the emerging role of social media.
11. MCPPEM-EM agreed to task NEMC to develop and research examples of individual and community resilience initiatives which have mitigated damage and / or losses from natural disasters (by the end of 2011)
12. MCPPEM-EM agreed that NEMC would work with Treasuries to review and report on (by mid 2011) Australia's legal structures regarding charities with particular reference to the application to them of taxation laws and to the principle of "charitable purposes" in the context of natural disasters.
